

About This Property

The Nobscot Scout Reservation, a 452-acre property in Framingham and Sudbury, is devoted to the outdoor education of students as well as to religious and community youth groups.

While the Scouts own the entire property, the Town of Sudbury and the Sudbury Valley Trustees took a critical step toward preserving the land for youth education by purchasing a 303-acre Conservation Restriction (CR) on much of the Sudbury portion of the land. This will prevent the land from ever being developed, and it permanently protects a large expanse of valuable habitat in a highly developed area.

Features of Note

- The Nixon Trail, as it passes by Nupp's Pond, provides a reminder that Revolutionary War General John Nixon, veteran of the Concord fight, Bunker Hill battle, and other engagements, lived on Nobscot Mountain for a time.
- Along Thirty Rod Road, a historical marker indicates the site of the 18th-century smallpox burial ground. Nearby are the cellar holes of the pest houses where patients were isolated.
- Views to Mt. Wachusett, Mt. Monadnock, and on a clear day, the Boston skyline, can be found along the trails, including from Tippling Rock, which is a prominent hilltop that stands at 410 feet in elevation.
- The reservation provides habitat for the eastern box turtle. These turtles primarily inhabit the woodlands and will use any open, sunny, sandy area for nesting in the spring.
- The reservation also provides habitat, including vernal pools, for the blue-spotted salamander.
